

To Whom It May Concern:

I have the pleasure of teaching Miguel Wells at The International Programs School (IPS) in Saudi Arabia. I have been a High School History educator for over six years, and Miguel stands out as one of my most accomplished and well-rounded students.

Miguel has consistently demonstrated an eagerness to learn and take risks in the classroom. Even in these times of virtual instruction, he exhibits initiative and actively seeks new ways to engage with the material. His work consistently exceeds expectations, and he utilizes class time wisely. Miguel not only respects his teachers and peers but also enhances group discussions through insightful comments. He collaborates effectively and works well with other students.

Beyond his commitment to academic excellence, Miguel strives to strengthen his commitment to be a global citizen. He has studied in various countries such as Columbia, Saudi Arabia and now resides in China. This has opened his eyes to different cultures and perspectives that has given him more strength and reliance to make him the best version of himself.

Miguel's diverse interests and active engagement within his local community extend beyond academics. He actively participates in various sports teams such as football and volleyball. His skills and strong collaborative efforts make Miguel a valuable asset to any organization. His willingness to be a team player is crucial in our global community.

What sets Miguel apart is not just his proficiency in English but also his eagerness to broaden his linguistic skills. He has expressed a keen interest in learning Chinese and actively seeks opportunities to practice speaking with locals in China. His commitment to embracing new languages and cultures showcases his adaptability and open-mindedness.

I am confident that Miguel Wells will significantly contribute to and strengthen any community he chooses to join. His combination of skills and qualities positions him as an effective leader. His readiness to embrace new challenges, take risks, and collaborate seamlessly with others is essential for success in our ever-changing world.
